IT SCORED A HIT.

The "Story of the Reformation"
Given Before a Large Crowd

AT THE GRAND ON LAST EVENING.

A Large and Capable Cast Gave the Dramatic Portion of the Entertainment With Success—Mrs. Monroe's Lecture was Enjoyed by the Audience—The Rendition to be Given Again This Evening.

The "Story of the Reformation" rendered before one of the largest audiences ever seen in the Grand Opera House, last evening, scored a distinct and unqualified hit. Mrs. Monroe's part of the performance, of course, was well handled, just as was expected. There had been a degree of uncertainty as to the success that would attend the collective efforts of the array of local talent that was assigned the several parts in the dramatic portion of the performance. This uncertainty was completely dispelled when the curtain rose on the allegorical procession, participated in by a number of local people, and the succeeding scenes, particularly the principal one, the trial of Luther, aroused the enthusiasm of the audience. It was said after the performance that the "Story of the Reformation," though given in many cities by capable casts, had never been presented more satisfactorily. That the audience this evening will compare favorably with that of last evening in numbers is hardly possible, but it will undoubtedly equal it. The English Lutheran church, under whose auspices the performance was given, can well feel proud of its success, a success that has not been surpassed by any local entertainment in late years.

The lecture proper was by Mrs. H. E. Monroe, the well known lecturer, assisted by a series of eighty-five stereoscopic views, illustrating every phase of the great reformer's life from youth to old age. Mrs. Monroe told the story in a pleasing manner, and in the two hours of the performance the spectator learned more of Luther and his times than could be learned in several weeks of study.

A criticism of those who took the various parts in the dramatic portion of the entertainment would develop nothing but words of praise. Every part from that of "Luther" down to the charming little "Page," impersonated by Master Paul Kimmons, was well sustained, making a harmonious whole that gave to the rendition a realism that was rarely dispelled when the curtain was rung down for the last time.

The "Trial of Luther" was the star scene, of course. Mr. C. E. Morris made an excellent "Luther," Judge G. L. Cranmer was a satisfactory "Emperor" and Mr. Bentley Jones "Cardinal" was a conscientious and able piece of work. The other principal parts were also ably sustained and the scene taken as a whole was more than had been expected. The drilling by detachments from the Knights of Pythias and Knights of the Mystic Chain was a feature of this scene.

The "Escape" scene where nine nuns flee from a convent was a feature second only to the trial scene and was well received by the audience. Every part was well rendered, without an exception. At the wind-up of this scene the choir from St. Luke's P. E. church sang "Lead, Kindly Light" very finely. The last part of the entertainment was the allegorical drill, taken part in by a large number of ladies and gentlemen, the former representing the states of the Union, while the gentlemen posed as the states of the German empire.

The music was by the Grand Opera House orchestra, under the direction of Prof. J. M. Hammond, and both the orchestra and the director distinguished themselves.

Dr. Colley Shriver Dead.

Wellsburg people were startled yesterday morning to learn of the death of Dr. Colley Shriver, a well known physician at Bathany. Sunday evening he chatted with his family and retired as usual. He was dead at 11 o'clock. Paralysis is said to have been the cause of his death. Dr. Shriver was a veteran of the late war, a member of the State Medical Association, Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and American Mechanics. He was a Republican in politics. He was forty-one years old. The interment will be at Wellsburg on Tuesday. Four other deaths were also reported there Monday, an unusual number.
